Free Transportation of Stock To Feed Cattle, Shipment of Hay to Drought Areas Arranged

CAIGAIRY, July 23.—Hon. Duncan Marshall stated to the Canadian Press tonight that arrangements had been made to ship free of charge two car loads of stock for any one man, into the feed areas from any point in southern Alberta. It has also been arranged that free transportation will be provided for seven tons of hay for any one man from any point in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta to the drought areas. Mr. Marshall stated that a good deal of hay and feed had been located in the northern part of Alberta.

A large section of the thickly settled part of the city. The council have examined alternative sites, but the one proposed the most suitable, everything considered. This is located near the packing plants and in what must become the industrial section of the city. The advantage and the price is undoubtedly high, present values considered.

Decisive Surely.

The prohibition bill passed the United States house of representatives by a vote almost three to one. It may undergo modification in the senate, but any radical alteration is unlikely in view of the overwhelming approval of the house.

The law is similar in one respect to the prohibition law that was approved by popular vote in Alberta; it does not make illegal the consumption of liquor for private consumption. But it does forbid the purchase, sale, manufacture and importation of liquor. The effect seems to be that present domestic supplies may be consumed, but that further supplies cannot be obtained.

Anything containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol is deemed to be liquor within the meaning of the act. The modified beer allowed in Canada is thus banned, and there is no exception in favor of wine. This is a direct refusal to accept the recommendation of President Wilson that beer and wine be permitted. Whether the president will exercise his power of veto and try to secure permission for the milder types of "hard" remains to be seen.

The passage of so stringent a law in the United States would not a few years ago have been deemed possible within the lifetime of the present generation. Its passage by so sweeping a majority of the representatives is remarkable even now, when the current of public opinion has been known to be running toward prohibition for years.

What Is the Situation?

The war office at London announced that it had ordered a landing of Bolshevik forces from the Caspian Sea in its rear. General Denikin's army has been forced to fall back. Very long ago the war office announced that British forces had been landed on the coast of the Black Sea.

We are supporting the anti-Bolshevik forces in Russia, or are we not? If we are it is time we did so for some purpose. If we are not it is time we got out of Russia "bag and baggage." And in either case it is high time the Allied powers took a more active part in the action they have been committed there.

Empire-Wreckers.

Yorkshire coal miners want an increase of pay. Wherefore they have called out the puppets and allowed the mines to be flooded. This is not trades unionism, or sane strike strategy. It is a blend of criminality and foolishness known as sabotage. The question of right aside, it ought to be apparent to any head that nobody is made better off by destroying wealth, and that to ruin a coal mine is about the poorest way conceivable to get an increase of pay for the miners.

There is a limit to the amount of this sort of thing that even England can stand without a financial collapse, and the disruption of the British Empire. A disconcertingly large percentage of the population of England seems bent on bringing that about.

The Cash Bonus Scheme.

The Alberta delegates to the G.W.V.A. convention at Vancouver succeeded in gaining the approval by the convention of the proposed cash bonus to returned soldiers. That the gathering was inclined to be hostile, rather than favorable, to the proposal until it had been taken to the convention confirms the view that the more the scheme is considered the more apparent its fairness becomes.

As yet no practical alternative proposal seems to have been made for dealing with all returned men. A land settlement scheme has been adopted under which soldiers going on the land are enabled to secure loans to equip and improve their holdings. It is being urged by the universities that Government assistance be also given to students who left their books at the call of duty and who now wish to resume their courses. But these schemes, however meritorious, do not pretend to deal with all returned men. They apply only to certain classes of them, and if nothing further were done the veterans who is not a student and who does not wish to take up farming would get no financial recognition, however great his sacrifices or his services.

It is not desirable from any angle that a scoring discrimination be shown as between men who placed themselves equally at the disposal of the country and who equally took whatever fortune came their way. As yet no proposal, other than that of an all round cash grant, has been offered to treat all returned men on a par. For the returned man who is not a student or who does not wish to farm the alternative appears to be simply the cash grant scheme, or no assistance at all from the public toward his re-establishment in civilian life. To oppose the only plan offered to help him is to insist that he be treated less considerately than his comrades.

The argument that the country could not raise the money is not convincing. The country has provided a billion and a half dollars that they might be destroyed, and out of the destruction of which no possible economic advantage could be secured. It can raise another billion to be put into constructive use, from which there will be a return in the way of increased production and increased comfort for the soldier and his family.

Reference to garden party at Buckingham Palace in London. Weakly Dispatch. One quality this incident I observed. One of two recipients of the Order of Merit appeared wearing their Order. Another the recipient of the Order of the most distinguished Order of the British Empire. "I came upon it," it was the "correct" idea. "I was not," and I came upon one well-known lady making even to her own husband and receiving it in her hand.

TRADE WITH GERMANY. Winston Churchill, British Minister of War, in London Dispatch. In this connection it is well to remember that Germany was a most important foreign market before the war. The German market for the United States is taking more active part in the foreign trade. Peace has restored a profitable trade with Germany and so control large sections of German industry. The French, who have a very practical people in money matters, have serious intention of resuming active commercial relations with Germany. If we in Britain were to continue indefinitely to rule out Germany, we would be ruling out a most important foreign market. The United States are taking more active part in the foreign trade. BRITAIN'S MONSTER AIRSHIP. Winnipeg Telegram. The announcement of the building of a monster dirigible by Great Britain, double the power and capacity of the R-34, and costing nine million pounds, has caused a great deal of talk. The figures given as to the new airship are that it will be able to carry a material advance towards combat use in the operations of these balloons. The new monster is to have a lifting power of 100 tons, and a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour. It is to be a dirigible, and a development of the "per cent" per annum—little enough, it would seem, in the case of an airship—there would be a fixed charge of $1,750,000 per annum to be taken care of before such a ship could operate commercially. Adding running and overhead expenses, for which another half million would be little enough, and the total would have to make a gross revenue of $4,000 every day in the year to break even.

Neither freight, passenger, nor mail service is in present circumstances, and under ordinary conditions, made such a task. It is evident, therefore, that the building of the big cruiser is only of value to the commercial sense to the extent that it points to the possibility of further development of air voyages and provides a length which may be of utility in developing a type of airship more feasible commercially.

A HOME VIEW OF WILSON. From New York Times. We cannot believe that even his face from himself. WILL BRAND HER FOR WHAT SHE IS.

Her Two Lovers Had Fought for Her. — Now, Crazy by Jealousy, They Seek to Mar Her Beauty for Life.

This was Mary Allen's reward for the sacrifice she had made that they might not be driven from their homes, and when she had escaped from the clutches of the brute who had placed such a heavy price on her innocence, she found herself an outcast—a thing apart. It was her awakening to the age-old truth of the selfishness of man's love.

Behind the Footlights

A "CAVE MAN" IN REAL LIFE.
Chisholm and Breen, who offer a comedy act entitled "The Cave Man" at the Pantages theatre this week, based the act upon actual fact. Mr. Chisholm telling of the instance which gave him the plot, declared: "The actual location of the place is in Wisconsin, and the man is really a heavy, husky youth of Swedish origin. The woman was a waitress in a Swiss lunch in Chicago. She was the first person thing in skirts. She had a smart, 'wim' answer for anything that was respected her way. She had to be that way because of the white birds who frequented the restaurant where she worked. When she went up to the Wisconsin town for a holiday she at midnight, she'd come to a graveyard at midnight. The only male of village there. And he knew it. He just followed her around. Finally she told him off, declared it was the hick variety, that he could never step in her tracks—the place was too hot, and she had ambitions. He knew what he wanted when he saw it. So he tried the cave man suit and 'got over' with it.

EMPRESS—Successor to "Shore Acres" and "Way Down East" in the classical character of its theme and setting, this picture is a masterpiece. Starring Stella Talbot, will be seen at the Empress theatre today and tomorrow.

Stella Talbot, in the role of Mary Allen, gives her audience an unusual effort to save her "sister" kin from the clutches of a cruel and cunning man who returns again to the island after ten days as the "prince" of Edgewood. In power, she finds his population unwilling to let her leave the island. Struggling to yield to her desire, she is forced to the realization that the island, to which he claims title, has been legally deeded to the squatters by his father.

Despite the unmerited disgrace and slander her kinmen had heaped upon her, she decides to return again to the island, to tender them the same treatment that would and forever the same. In the tumble-down cabin of the island, she finds the same old man, who had been the cause of her exile. In the end, she is forced to the realization that the island, to which he claims title, has been legally deeded to the squatters by his father.

REGENT—Henry B. Walthall returns to the screen in the biggest theatre for three days, commencing today, when he will be seen in the new film in Edmonton in his interpretation of Florence Finch Kelly's romantic story of the cattle lands of western Texas. "With Hoops of Steel."

During the years that Mr. Walthall has been one of the most popular stars in the realm of the silent drama, he has appeared in a great variety of types. From "The Little Colonel" to "The Birth of a Nation" to a judge of the Supreme Court in the state of New York in "His Hope of Honor," until the making of "With Hoops of Steel," Mr. Walthall had never appeared in the role of a cowboy. The reason is easily understood: For Mr. Walthall has never consented to appear in a story the theme of which was overdrawn to any great extent from life as it really lived. In "With Hoops of Steel," however, Mr. Walthall has found a story that depicts the life of the cattle range of Texas in a true and graphic manner at the same time containing all the elements of a well-constructed action and romance that are needed to carry a story of this kind successfully.

In the role of "Bismarck Mead," he portrays the character of a man at the head of the independent cattle owners, who have been oppressed by the high-handed methods of a large cattle syndicate. He is accused of murder by the head of the syndicate, and is captured after a series of thrilling incidents. Circumstantial evidence is so strongly against him that conviction seems predestined. Then comes that twist in the story when gangway, law and prejudice are swept away by the vindication of the man accused.

Most of the scenes of the picture were taken on the cattle ranges of Texas and in the desert country of Arizona.

ALLEN—In picturing his famous novel, Rex Beach enjoys an advantage—by his author's authority. It consists of his personal acquaintance, which begins with the choice of the novel and scenery, ends when the motion picture is projected on the screen. He never ceases to read the captions and improve the action, guided by what he learns when he visits theatres where his photographs are shown.

"The Crimson Gardenia," which comes to the Allen theatre for the last time today, is his newest offering, and the novel is being shown in New York to California. It is present at his production in the Golden Theatre. As a matter of course he supervised the preparation of the scenery, personally selected every member of the cast from Owen Moore and Meda Noyes, who have the most important roles, down to Tina Marshall, who characterizes the telephone girl.

Ganna's Up." Her newest Bluebird comedy drama.
It is the story of a struggling young painter, who writes glowing letters home, telling of a high-powered motor car, a palatial home, and industrial firms, all of which came into his inheritance. A girl comes to spend the afternoon with the famous (?) young artist, and the latter is required to make good her big bluebird with the aid of a young millionaire, who poses as her chaperone. The series of complications that ensue when the friend's wife is longed for, a week, furnishes a myriad of ideal comedy situations.

The star is supported by a notable cast, headed by Al Hay, a cousin of the better known Charlie Chaplin. Other stars, Harry Holden, Glenn Ford, and Margaret Callaghan.
The playhouse was directed by John W. Wilson, from the story by Adrienne Carr, prepared from the original story by Gladys R. Johnson.

MONARCH—Douglas Fairbanks, the popular optimistic Arcturion screen star, has sent out another winner. "He Comes Up Smiling," and was presented with highly gratifying results at the Monarch yesterday. The story of the picture is a novel one, and the performance of Mr. Fairbanks, who is seen as a tramp, may fairly be said to be one of the finest of his screen career.

Jerry Merlo, a bank clerk in a small town, whose principal duty is to get the money out of the pockets of the bank. The bird flies away with Jerry's money, and the pursuit. This brings him far into the country and after he has been surprised to escape a second time, he meets with some trouble. Instantly he is old enough for the life of the hero returns and he becomes one of the best, but until he has proved his power to join the brotherhood by the time he is later becomes his victim.

Thus Jerry is dubbed "The Wonder Man," but his clean habits which are resented by his victim who steals Jerry's clothes while he is bathing in a lake, from him. He is a most successful man of adventures. He finds the clothes of the brotherhood when he permeates with thriller. Whether it is the president of a trust company, with whom Bachelor Brother Jerry is immediately a financial case to grind. When Jerry who plays Billy, learns that he is supposed to be a better man than the father, he is determined to straighten out the tangle. This is a really accomplished after a very exceptionally interesting happenings.

On the radio program with "He Comes Up Smiling" is the second edition of that stellar western serial, "The Terror of the Range."

MOTOR BACK FIRE

REPEATED CASE CHICAGO TRAGEDY
Two Juries are Engaged in Inquiry into Week of Dringible
Chicago, July 23.—Further investigation into the wreck of the Goodspeed Tire Company's motor car, which crashed on Monday morning, resulted in the death of 12 persons, the injury of 24 others and the destruction of property to the value of $100,000.

The investigation, which started yesterday, was adjourned because of the weather, and will resume on Monday morning. The jury is expected to return its verdict on Tuesday.

The motor car, which was driven by Henry Wacker, surviving mechanic of the Goodspeed Tire Company, was a 1918 model. It was found to be in good condition at the time of the crash.

The crash occurred on a busy street in Chicago. The car was traveling at a high speed when it lost control and crashed into a building.

The investigation is being conducted by the Chicago Police Department. A full report will be issued later.
